Interagency Proposal for Model Privacy Form under the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act

AGENCIES: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Treasury (OCC); Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (Board); Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC); Office of Thrift Supervision, Treasury (OTS); National Credit Union Administration (NCUA); Federal Trade Commission (FTC); Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC); and Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: The OCC, Board, FDIC, OTS, NCUA, FTC, CFTC, and SEC (the Agencies) are proposing amendments to their rules that implement the privacy provisions of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLB Act), Title V, Subtitle A. These rules require financial institutions to provide initial and annual privacy notices to their customers. As required under Section 728 of the Financial Services Regulatory Relief Act of 2006 (Regulatory Relief Act or Act), the Agencies are proposing a safe harbor model privacy form that financial institutions may use to provide disclosures under the privacy rules. Institutions that use notices based on the Sample Clauses currently contained in most of the privacy rules would lose the benefit of a safe harbor for compliance with respect to those notices if they are provided more than one year following the date of publication of a final rule. Similarly, institutions that use notices based on the Sample Clauses in the SEC's privacy rule could no longer rely on the guidance provided with respect to those notices if they are provided more than one year following the date of publication of a final rule.

DATES: Comments must be submitted on or before [INSERT DATE 60 DAYS AFTER DATE OF PUBLICATION IN THE FEDERAL REGISTER].

For information regarding the effective dates of the provisions proposed in this document, see the discussion under "Proposed Effective Dates" in the SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION section.

ADDRESSES: Because the Agencies will jointly review all of the comments submitted, interested parties may send comments to any of the Agencies and need not send comments (or copies) to all of the Agencies. Commenters are encouraged to use the title "Model Privacy Form" to facilitate the organization and distribution of comments among the Agencies. Interested parties are invited to submit written comments to:

Office of the Comptroller of the Currency: You may submit comments by any of the following methods:

- Federal eRulemaking Portal – “Regulations.gov”: Go to <http://www.regulations.gov>, select “Comptroller of the Currency” from the agency drop-down menu, then click “Submit.” In the “Docket ID” column, select “OCC-2007-0003” to submit or view public comments and to view supporting and related materials for this notice of proposed rulemaking. The “User Tips” link at the top of the Regulations.gov home page provides information on using Regulations.gov, including instructions for submitting or viewing public comments, viewing other supporting and related materials, and viewing the docket after the close of the comment period.
- Mail: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, 250 E Street, SW, Mail Stop 1-5, Washington, DC 20219.
- Hand Delivery/Courier: 250 E Street, SW, Attn: Public Information Room, Mail Stop 1-5, Washington, DC 20219.

Instructions: You must include “OCC” as the agency name and “Docket Number OCC-2007-0003” in your comment. In general, OCC will enter all comments received into the docket and publish them on Regulations.gov without change, including any business or personal information that you provide such as name and address information, e-mail addresses, or phone numbers. Comments, including attachments and other supporting materials, received are part of the public record and subject to public disclosure. Do not enclose any information in your comment or supporting materials that you consider confidential or inappropriate for public disclosure.

You may review comments and other related materials by any of the following methods:

- Viewing Comments Electronically: Go to <http://www.regulations.gov>, select “Comptroller of the Currency” from the agency drop-down menu, then click “Submit.” In the “Docket ID” column, select “OCC-2007-0003” to view public comments for this notice of proposed rulemaking.
- Viewing Comments Personally: You may personally inspect and photocopy comments at the OCC’s Public Information Room, 250 E Street, SW, Washington, DC. You can make an appointment to inspect comments by calling (202) 874-5043.
- Docket: You may also view or request available background documents and project summaries using the methods described above.

Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System: You may submit comments, identified by Docket No. R-1280, by any of the following methods:

- Agency Web Site: <http://www.federalreserve.gov>. Follow the instructions for submitting comments at <http://www.federalreserve.gov/generalinfo/foia/ProposedRegs.cfm>.
- Federal eRulemaking Portal: <http://www.regulations.gov>. Follow the instructions for submitting comments.

- E-mail: regs.comments@federalreserve.gov. Include docket number in the subject line of the message.

Instructions: All submissions received must include the agency name and docket number for this rulemaking. All comments received will be entered into the docket and posted on Regulations.gov without change, including any personal information provided. Comments, including attachments and other supporting materials received are part of the public record and subject to public disclosure. Do not enclose any information in your comment or supporting materials that you consider confidential or inappropriate for public disclosure.

Viewing Comments Electronically: Go to <http://www.regulations.gov>, select "Office of Thrift Supervision" from the agency drop-down menu, then click "Submit." Select Docket ID "OTS-2007-0005" to view public comments for this notice of proposed rulemaking.

Viewing Comments On-Site: You may inspect comments at the Public Reading Room, 1700 G Street, NW, by appointment. To make an appointment for access, call (202) 906-5922, send an e-mail to public.info@ots.treas.gov, or send a facsimile transmission to (202) 906-6518. (Prior notice identifying the materials you will be requesting will assist us in serving you.) We schedule appointments on business days between 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. In most cases, appointments will be available the next business day following the date we receive a request.

National Credit Union Administration: Comments should be directed to Mary Rupp, Secretary of the Board. You may submit comments by any of the following methods (Please send comments by one method only):

- Federal eRulemaking Portal: <http://www.regulations.gov>. Follow the instructions for submitting comments.
- NCUA Web Site: http://www.ncua.gov/news/proposed_regs/proposed_regs.html. Follow the instructions for submitting comments.
- E-mail: Address to regcomments@ncua.gov. Include "[Your name] Comments on Proposed Rule Part 716 (Model Form for Privacy Notice)" in the e-mail subject line.
- Fax: (703) 518-6319. Use the subject line described above for e-mail.
- Mail: Address to Mary Rupp, Secretary of the Board, National Credit Union Administration, 1775 Duke Street, Alexandria, Virginia 22314-3428.
- Hand Delivery/Courier: Same as mail address.

Federal Trade Commission: All persons are invited to submit written comments. Comments should refer to “Model Privacy Form, FTC File No. P034815” to facilitate the organization of comments. Comments filed in paper form should include this reference both in the text and on the envelope, and should be mailed or delivered to: Federal Trade Commission/Office of the Secretary, Room 135 (Annex C), 600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20580. Because paper mail in the Washington area and at the Commission is subject to delay, please consider submitting your comments in electronic form, as prescribed below. If the comment contains any material for which confidential treatment is requested, it must be filed in paper (rather than electronic) form, and the first page of the document must be clearly labeled “Confidential.”¹ The FTC is requesting that any comment filed in paper form be sent by courier or overnight service, if possible.

Comments filed in electronic form should be submitted by using the following weblink: <https://secure.commentworks.com/ftc-modelform> (and following the instructions on the Web-based form). To ensure that the Commission considers an electronic comment, you must file it on the Web-based form at the weblink <https://secure.commentworks.com/ftc-modelform>. If this notice appears at www.regulations.gov, you may also file an electronic comment through that Web site. The Commission will consider all comments that www.regulations.gov forwards to it.² The FTC Act and other laws the Commission administers permit the collection of public comments to consider and use in this proceeding as appropriate. All timely and responsive public comments with all required fields completed, whether filed in paper or electronic form, will be considered by the Commission, and will be available to the public on the FTC Web site, to the extent practicable, at www.ftc.gov. As a matter of discretion, the Commission makes every effort to remove home contact information for individuals it receives from the public comments before placing those comments on the FTC Web site. More information, including routine uses permitted by the Privacy Act, may be found in the FTC’s privacy policy, at <http://www.ftc.gov/ftc/privacy.htm>.

¹ Commission Rule 4.2(d), 16 CFR 4.2(d). The comment must also be accompanied by an explicit request for confidential treatment, including the factual and legal basis for the request, and must identify the specific portions of the comment to be withheld from the public record. The request will be granted or denied by the Commission’s General Counsel, consistent with applicable law and the public interest. See Commission Rule 4.9(c), 16 CFR 4.9(c).

Commodity Futures Trading Commission: Comments should be directed to Eileen Donovan, Acting Secretary of the Commission, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Three Lafayette Centre, 1155 21st Street, NW, Washington, DC 20581. Comments may be sent by facsimile transmission to (202) 418-5528 or by e-mail to secretary@cftc.gov.

Securities and Exchange Commission: Comments may be submitted by any of the following methods:

Electronic Comments:

- Use the Commission's Internet comment form (<http://www.sec.gov/rules/proposed.shtml>); or
- Send an e-mail to rule-comments@sec.gov. Please include File Number S7-09-07 and "Model Privacy Form" on the subject line; or
- Use the Federal eRulemaking Portal (<http://www.regulations.gov>). Follow the instructions for submitting comments.

Paper Comments:

- Send paper comments in triplicate to Nancy M. Morris, Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 100 F Street, NE, Washington, DC 20549-1090.

All submissions should refer to File Number S7-09-07 and "Model Privacy Form." This file number should be included on the subject line if e-mail is used. To help us process and review your comments more efficiently, please use only one method. The Commission will post all comments on the Commission's Internet Web site (<http://www.sec.gov/rules/proposed.shtml>). Comments are also available for public inspection and copying in the Commission's Public Reference Room, 100 F Street, NE, Washington, DC 20549. All comments received will be posted without change; we do not edit personal identifying information from submissions. You should submit only information that you wish to make available publicly.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

The Agencies are proposing amendments to each of their rules (which are consistent and comparable) that implement the privacy provisions of the GLB Act: 12 CFR part 40 (OCC); 12 CFR part 216 (Board); 12 CFR part 332 (FDIC); 12 CFR part 573 (OTS); 12 CFR part 716 (NCUA); 16 CFR part 313 (FTC); 17 CFR part 160 (CFTC); and 17 CFR part 248 (SEC) (collectively, the “privacy rule”).³

I. BACKGROUND

The Regulatory Relief Act was enacted on October 13, 2006.⁴ Section 728 of the Act directs the Agencies to “jointly develop a model form which may be used, at the option of the financial institution, for the provision of disclosures under [section 503 of the GLB

⁴ P.L. 109-351 (Oct. 13, 2006), 120 Stat. 1966.

Act].”⁵ The Regulatory Relief Act stipulates that the model form shall be a safe harbor for financial institutions that elect to use it. Section 728 further directs that the model form shall:

- (A) be comprehensible to consumers, with a clear format and design;
- (B) provide for clear and conspicuous disclosures;
- (C) enable consumers easily to identify the sharing practices of a financial institution and to compare privacy practices among financial institutions; and
- (D) be succinct, and use an easily readable type font.

The Agencies are required to propose a model form for public comment by April 11, 2007.

A. The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act Privacy Notices

Subtitle A of title V of the GLB Act, captioned Disclosure of Nonpublic Personal Information,⁶ requires each financial institution to provide a notice of its privacy policies and practices to its customers who are consumers.⁷ In general, the privacy notices must describe a financial institution’s policies and practices with respect to disclosing nonpublic personal information about a consumer to both affiliated and nonaffiliated third parties.⁸ The notices also must provide a consumer a reasonable opportunity to direct the institution generally not to share nonpublic personal information⁹ about the consumer (that ⁵ Id., adding 15 U.S.C. 6803(e). Section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act directs the agencies named in Section 504(a)(1) of the GLB Act, 15 U.S.C. 6804(a)(1), to develop a model form. The CFTC, which did not become subject to Title V of the GLB Act until 2000, is not named in that section. The Commodity Exchange Act (“CEA”) was amended in 2000 by the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 to make the CFTC a “federal functional regulator” subject to the GLB Act Title V. See Section 5g of the CEA, 7 U.S.C. 7b-2. The CFTC interprets Section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act as applying to it through Section 5g.

⁷ 15 U.S.C. 6803(a). A “customer” means a consumer who has a “customer relationship with a financial institution.” Privacy rule, section ____3(h), SEC section 248.3(j), CFTC section 160.3(k). A “consumer” is “an individual who obtains, from a financial institution, financial products or services which are to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, and also means the legal representative of such an individual.” 15 U.S.C. 6809(9); privacy rule, section ____3(e), SEC section 248.3(g)(1), CFTC section 160.3(h)(1).

⁸ 15 U.S.C. 6803(a)-(c).

⁹ 15 U.S.C. 6809(4). “Nonpublic personal information” is generally defined as personally identifiable financial information provided by a consumer to a financial is, to “opt out”) with nonaffiliated third parties other than as permitted by the statute (for example, sharing for everyday business purposes, such as processing transactions and maintaining customers’ accounts, and in response to properly executed governmental requests).¹⁰ The privacy notice must provide, where applicable under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), a notice and an opportunity for a consumer to opt out of certain information sharing among affiliates.¹¹

The privacy rule requires a financial institution to provide a privacy notice to its customers no later than when a customer relationship is formed and annually for as long as the relationship continues. The notice must accurately reflect the institution’s information collection and disclosure practices and must include specific information. Section __.6 of the privacy rule requires the privacy notice to include the following:

- (1) the categories of nonpublic personal information that the institution collects;
- (2) with respect to both current and former customers, the categories of nonpublic personal information that it discloses and the categories of affiliates and nonaffiliated third parties to whom it discloses such information other than as permitted by the exceptions in sections __.14 and __.15;
- (3) where the institution relies on the exception in section __.13 to share nonpublic personal information (pertaining to joint marketing), the categories of information disclosed, and the categories of third parties with which the institution has contracted;
- (4) where applicable, an explanation of the consumer’s right under section __.10(a) to opt out of the disclosure of nonpublic personal information to nonaffiliated third parties and the methods by which the consumer may opt out;
- (5) disclosures made under section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA (pertaining to the ability to opt out of certain sharing with affiliates) and the applicable opt-out notice;
- (6) the institution’s policies and practices with respect to protecting the confidentiality and security of nonpublic personal information; and
- (7) where applicable, a statement that the institution discloses nonpublic personal information to nonaffiliated third parties pursuant to the section __.14 and __.15 exceptions.

The privacy rule does not prescribe any specific format or standardized wording for these notices. Instead, institutions may design their own notices based on their individual practices provided they comply with the law and meet the “clear and conspicuous” standard in the statute and the privacy rule.¹² The Appendix to the privacy rule contains model language (Sample Clauses) that institutions may use in privacy notices to satisfy the privacy rule.

Financial institutions first were required to distribute privacy notices to their customers by July 1, 2001.¹³ Many privacy notices in the initial effort were long and complex. In addition, because the privacy rule allows institutions flexibility in designing their privacy notices, notices have been formatted in various ways and as a result have been difficult to compare, even among financial institutions with identical privacy policies.

In response to broad-based concerns expressed by representatives of financial institutions, consumers, privacy advocates, and members of Congress, the Agencies conducted a workshop in December 2001 to provide a forum to consider how financial institutions could provide more useful privacy notices to consumers.¹⁴ The workshop featured panel presentations by financial institutions, consumer advocates, and communications experts, and highlighted key communication principles to improve the notices. A number of institutions, particularly those with complex information-sharing practices, described the challenges they faced in explaining their practices and the choices available to consumers in a simple fashion while meeting all of the legal requirements for notice. Some institutions described results of consumer testing and their efforts to make privacy notices clearer and more useful to consumers.

On December 30, 2003, the Agencies published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to Consider Alternative Forms of Privacy Notices under the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act¹⁵ (ANPR) to solicit comment on a wide range of issues related to improving privacy notices. The Agencies sought, for example, comment on issues associated with the format, elements, and language used in privacy notices that would make the notices more accessible, readable, and useful, and whether to develop a model privacy notice that would be short and simple. The Agencies also solicited examples of forms, model clauses, and other information, such as applicable research that has been conducted in this area. The ANPR stated that the Agencies expected that consumer testing would be a key component in the development of any specific proposals.

¹³ The CFTC was added by Section 5g of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7b-2 (as amended by the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000), on December 21, 2000, and privacy notices were required to be delivered to consumers by March 31, 2002.

During January and February 2004, the Agencies met with a number of interested groups and individuals to discuss the issues raised in the ANPR.¹⁶ The Agencies received forty-four comments in response to the ANPR.¹⁷ While commenters expressed a variety of views on the questions posed in the ANPR, many commenters agreed that the Agencies should conduct consumer testing before proposing any alternative privacy notice.

B. The Interagency Notice Project

In the summer of 2004, six Agencies¹⁸ agreed to launch a project to fund consumer research (Notice Project). Their goals were to identify barriers to consumer understanding of current privacy notices and to develop an alternative privacy notice, or elements of a notice, that consumers could more easily use and understand compared to current notices. When the Agencies initiated this project, they contemplated conducting the consumer research in two sequential phases. The first phase was designed as qualitative testing, that is, form development research. This research involved a series of in-depth individual consumer interviews to develop an alternative privacy notice that would be easier for consumers to use and understand. The second phase was designed as quantitative testing, to test the effectiveness of the alternative privacy notice developed in phase one among a larger number of consumers. The first phase has been completed and resulted in the model notice we are proposing for comment today. The Agencies expect to conduct the second phase of testing after receipt of comments in response to this proposal.¹⁹

In September 2004, the six Agencies selected Kleimann Communication Group, Inc. (Kleimann) as their contractor for the phase one form development research. The research objectives of the Notice Project included designing a privacy notice that consumers could understand and use, that facilitated comparison of sharing practices and policies across privacy notices, and that addressed all relevant legal requirements of the GLB Act and FCRA. At the outset of the research, the Agencies considered a range of possible options for the notice, including a short notice, a layered approach (highlighting key information upfront), as well as a longer fully-compliant notice. The Agencies limited the project to paper-based notices, reasoning that a successful paper notice could be readily adapted to another medium such as the Internet. The Agencies used a readable font²⁰ and, in order not to confound the research findings on comprehension by introducing too many variables into the test notice, expressly did not use color, logos, or other graphical designs in the test notices. Instead, the Agencies focused on formulating and testing content that consumers could understand and use in order to develop a short, simplified privacy notice that met the research objectives.

The form development phase culminated in an extensive research report released by the Agencies in March 2006. Prepared by Kleimann, "Evolution of a Prototype Financial Privacy Notice," details the process by which the Agencies and Kleimann developed an alternative privacy notice.²¹ As explained more fully in the Kleimann Report, over a one-year period, Kleimann conducted two focus groups followed by a series of 46 in-depth, individual interviews, conducted sequentially at seven sites around the country. The interviews tested consumers on their ability to comprehend, use, and compare notices based on variations in vocabulary, ordering of content, and format. The structure, content, ordering of the text information, and title of the proposed model form all reflect the research findings in the qualitative consumer testing.

The Agencies now are proposing the model privacy notice produced in the form development phase with some minor revisions (the proposed model form) for comment in accordance with the Regulatory Relief Act. The Agencies contemplate that the safe harbor for the proposed model form will be effective upon publication of the final rule in order to permit institutions that elect to use the form to do so immediately. The Agencies recognize that institutions may post their privacy notices on their Internet sites, as well as deliver paper or email versions to their customers. The Agencies contemplate that institutions that post a pdf version of the proposed model privacy form may obtain a safe harbor, but are requesting comment on whether to develop a Web-based design for financial institutions to use on their Internet sites, including comment on particular design and/or technical considerations.

The Agencies believe that the proposed model form meets all the requirements of the Act and is easier to understand than most privacy notices currently being disseminated. The following section describes the proposed model form and highlights some key research findings. For more detailed information on the research methodology and the form development process, commenters are encouraged to review the full Kleimann Report. The Agencies also are proposing instructions on how institutions may obtain a safe harbor by using the proposed model form, including an explanation of aspects of the form that may and may not be varied.²² Institutions would not be able to vary content or format, other than as described in this proposal, to take advantage of the safe harbor. Moreover, institutions would not be able to include any other information in the proposed model form nor incorporate this model form into any other document.

II. THE PROPOSED MODEL FORM

A. The Structure

The proposed model form has either two or three pages, depending on whether the financial institution provides an opt-out. While the research showed that page one alone was adequate for comprehension and usability, page one together with page two address the legal requirements of applicable Federal financial privacy laws and increase consumer comprehension. Each of the pages of the model form is printed separately and only on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch piece of paper because, during testing, consumers expressed a preference for the model which allowed them to view the information on pages one and two side-by-side.²³ The proposed model form in Appendix A is designed to be customized by each financial institution that elects to use it by inserting, for example, the institution's name, contact information, and information about affiliates, nonaffiliates, or joint marketing partners, if any, with which it shares personal information. In addition, the disclosure table requires that each institution complete the responses in each of the boxes provided in a manner that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices.

Below is one example of a completed model form for a fictional financial institution, Neptune, whose privacy policy provides for broad sharing in a manner that triggers consumer opt-out rights. For comparison, a second example is also provided for another fictional institution, Mars, whose privacy policy limits sharing and does not trigger consumer opt-out rights. Each of these institutions uses and shares personal information in different ways; thus, their responses in the disclosure table vary, as do the descriptions of their affiliates, nonaffiliates, or joint marketing partners in the definition section.²⁴ simplified notice as described in section __.6(c)(5) (NCUA 716.6(e)(5)) of the privacy rule if it does not have affiliates and does not intend to share nonpublic personal information with nonaffiliated third parties outside of the exceptions provided in sections __.14 and __.15.

²³ The proposed model form has the opt-out options and instructions on a separate page. Staff of certain of the Agencies issued Frequently Asked Questions in December 2001 (Privacy FAQs), stating that a consumer should be able to detach a mail-in opt-out form from a privacy notice without removing text from the privacy policy. Otherwise, the institution may violate section __.9(e) of the privacy rule, which requires that a privacy policy must be provided in such a way that a customer can retain the text of the notices or obtain them later. See F.4 of the Privacy FAQs, available at <http://www.ftc.gov/privacy/glbact/glb-faq.htm>.

Importantly, since Mars does not share in a way that triggers an opt-out, the opt-out form (page 3 of the proposed model form) is not required and so is not included in the Mars notice. Thus, not every institution subject to the privacy rule will have to provide page three of the model form; only those institutions whose privacy practices require delivery of an opt-out notice or those institutions that choose to provide opt-outs beyond those required by law.

consumers suggested that, at a minimum, the notices should be dated to reflect the most recent revision so consumers would know when the notice was last changed and could more easily identify the most recent policy statement. Changes to an institution's policy may be reflected in a revised notice under section __.8 of the privacy rule or in an annual notice. Some institutions highlight changes to their privacy notices in some distinctive way, so that consumers can readily identify the change. As discussed later in Section V, the Agencies invite comment on whether financial institutions should be required to alert consumers to changes in an institution's privacy practices as part of the proposed model form.

B. Page One – Background Information and the Disclosure Table

Page one of the proposed model form has four parts: (1) the title; (2) an introductory section called the “key frame,” which provides context to help the consumer better understand the required disclosures; (3) a table that describes the types of sharing Federal law allows, which of those types of sharing the institution actually does, and whether the consumer can opt out of any type of the institution’s sharing; and (4) the institution’s contact information.

The research showed that the title, “FACTS What Does [name of financial institution] Do With Your Personal Information,” is more likely to catch consumers’ attention so they will read the notice. The title can be used by all institutions regardless of their information sharing practices.

The “key frame,” with its three short headings – Why, What, and How – is included because the research showed that, unless consumers have some basic facts about information sharing, they are less likely to understand why they are receiving a privacy notice and what to do with one. The “Why” box tells consumers that Federal law requires that the financial institution send the notice. The “What” box explains the types of personal information financial institutions collect and share.²⁶ The “How” box explains that some information sharing is necessary for all institutions in order to provide the products and services that consumers request. It also briefly explains what information consumers will find in the disclosure table below. The research found that these particular headings and the bulleted explanations enhanced consumers’ understanding of the purpose of the notice, enabled them to make an informed decision about the use of their personal information, and aided their overall comprehension.

The disclosure table at the bottom of page one provides information about the financial institution’s sharing practices. The research found that this table is the “heart” of the proposed model form, “enabl[ing] consumers to understand the details of their financial institution’s sharing practices in the context of how other financial institutions can share. It is critical for comprehension and comparability.”²⁷ The table is featured on page one because it is one of the most important elements of the model form.

²⁶ The Agencies recognize that some financial institutions may not collect each type of information described in the “What” box. As reflected in the introductory clause, which states that the “information [collected] can include ...,” the standardized terms are designed to reflect the range of information typically collected by financial institutions required to provide privacy notices under the GLB Act and FCRA, rather than the specific information collected by each particular institution, and therefore, are not to be modified to reflect an institution’s particular practices. The SEC’s model privacy form reflects modified terms in the “What” box that are intended to include the range of information typically collected by brokers, dealers, investment advisers registered with the Commission, and investment companies.

²⁷ See Kleimann Report, supra note 21, at v and 7.

Key research findings were that providing this information in a table form greatly increased consumers' ability to readily identify and understand an institution's sharing practices and what, if any, choices they had to limit any of that sharing, and easily compare these practices and choices among institutions. The Agencies asked Kleimann to develop and test a "prose" version describing information sharing practices since such a format would be more comparable to notices currently used by financial institutions. However, the research found that the table design of the proposed model form outperformed the prose design on a variety of measures, including comprehension, comparability, and usability.²⁸

The disclosure table includes a description of the possible types of sharing and uses of personal information and the associated opt-out choices that must be disclosed. The opt-out disclosures are required under: (1) section 502(b) of the GLB Act (regarding certain sharing with nonaffiliated third parties); (2) section 603(d)(2)(A) of the FCRA (regarding sharing of creditworthiness and credit report information among affiliates); and (3) section 624 of the FCRA, as added by section 214 of the Fair and Accurate Credit Transactions Act of 2003 (Fact Act), 15 U.S.C. 1681s-3 (use of that information for marketing).²⁹ The table provides important context about what information sharing a financial institution actually does relative to what it could do. The research showed that the table, with its standardized content, facilitates easy comparison of information sharing practices among different institutions. The structure of the disclosure table and the reasons for sharing are designed to be consistent for all financial institutions.³⁰ The ²⁸ See id. at 185, 215, 256.

²⁹ Pub. L. 108-159, 117 Stat. 1952. Section 624 provides that information that may be shared among affiliates – including transaction and experience information and certain creditworthiness information – cannot be used for marketing purposes unless the consumer has received a notice of such use and an opportunity to opt out, and the consumer does not opt out. The Agencies have included language pertaining to this affiliate marketing provision and the related opt-out on the notice developed in the consumer research in response to comments to the ANPR. While the Agencies have not yet issued a final regulation implementing this provision of the FACT Act, they are coordinating this rulemaking with the affiliate marketing rulemaking to ensure that language addressing the section 624 opt-out as incorporated in this model form (when finalized) would be deemed to comply with the affiliate marketing rule. Institutions would not be required to include reference to this provision until a final rule for section 624 is issued and becomes effective, and only in the event that institutions choose to consolidate the 624 notice and opt-out with the GLB Act privacy notice.

³⁰ The reasons for sharing are grouped into three main categories. The first three reasons describe what financial institutions do with their consumers' personal information. The next three reasons describe what a financial institution's affiliates do with that information. The last reason describes what nonaffiliated companies may do with the personal information, other than acting as a service provider to or acting jointly with the financial institution (that is, outside the exceptions provided in institution-specific information lies in the answers to the questions within each of the boxes. Accordingly, even if a financial institution does not share for one of the reasons listed in the table (for example, it has no affiliates and therefore does not share with affiliates), the institution could not exclude that reason from the table, but would answer “No” under “Does [name of financial institution] share?”

The language used in the disclosure table is based on Kleimann’s research. The simplified phrases describing information sharing practices were continually refined through the consumer testing process to allow consumers to better understand the information sharing and use possibilities. The laws governing the disclosure of consumers’ personal information are not easily translated into short, comprehensible phrases that are also legally precise. Thus, the table in some cases uses more easily understandable short-hand terms to describe sharing practices required to be in the notice. For example, the table uses the term “everyday business purposes” to describe the sharing contemplated by the exceptions in sections __.14 and __.15 of the privacy rule, which does not trigger opt-out rights. The research found that consumers understood that “everyday business purposes” means that companies must share in some basic ways in order to provide the financial products or services that consumers request. The table also speaks in terms of the institution’s own “marketing purposes” to capture the idea that nearly all, if not all, financial institutions share information in connection with marketing their own products and services to their customers (for example, with a service provider such as a bulk mailer or data processor) in a manner that does not trigger an opt-out right. With respect to the reasons for information sharing among affiliated companies that track the FCRA provisions³¹ (the sharing of “transaction and experience information” and the sharing of “other information”), the disclosure table uses “Information about your creditworthiness” as a short-hand term for the statutory term “other information.”

The institution’s contact information appears at the bottom of page one in response to consumers’ preferences expressed during testing.

C. Page Two – Supplemental Information

The second page provides additional explanatory information that, in combination with page one, ensures that the notice includes all elements described in the GLB Act as implemented by the privacy rule. There is supplemental information in the form of Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)³² at the top and definitions below.³³ The research sections __.13, __. 14, and __.15). This generally means marketing by the nonaffiliated company.

³¹ See section 603(d)(2)(A) of the FCRA.

³² Note that financial institutions should insert their names as indicated in the first three questions in this section.

³³ The FAQ box regarding sources of information does not permit a financial institution to customize the sources of information it collects. As with the standardized terms describing information the institution collects on page one, see supra note 26, the disclosure is intended to include the range of information showed that although consumers generally understood the concepts of certain technical words, they found that the four definitions on page two provided helpful additional information that further clarified the nature and type of information sharing by a financial institution. Some of the definitions include institution-specific information required by the GLB Act. For example, an institution that has affiliates must identify the categories of its affiliates after the definition. Likewise, an institution that has no affiliates can explain after the definition that it does not have affiliates.

Examples of institution-specific information are shown for the last three definitions in the italicized print in both the Neptune and Mars forms. Thus, Neptune has affiliates with which it shares certain information and, under the definition of “affiliates,” Neptune includes information in italics that describes the categories of its affiliates. Since Mars has no affiliates, the Mars form states “Mars has no affiliates.”

D. Page Three – The Opt-Out Form

The third page provides an opt-out form, for use by those financial institutions that share in a manner that triggers consumer opt-out rights under the GLB Act or FCRA (see the proposed model privacy form in Appendix A and the Neptune form). Institutions using the proposed model form must include page three in their notices only if they (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out, or (2) choose to provide opt-outs beyond what is required by law.

The opt-out page lists three common methods for opting out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail – and summarizes the opt-out choices available to the consumer in a clear and easy-to-read format that the research found consumers appreciated. Financial institutions that provide opt-out forms are not required to provide all the opt-out choices and methods described in the Neptune opt-out form. The Agencies expect that institutions may need to tailor the opt-out page to reflect accurately the institution’s particular practices.³⁴ The model form, for example, includes information for the customer’s account number as a means of identifying both the customer and account to which the opt-out sources typically used by institutions subject to the GLB Act and FCRA rather than the information sources used by each particular institution. The SEC’s model form reflects additional terms in this box that are intended to include the range of sources of information typically used by brokers, dealers, investment advisers registered with the Commission, and investment companies.

should apply. Institutions requiring consumers with multiple account numbers to list each account number to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the form. Institutions requiring information other than an account number should modify that portion of the form. Institutions that allow more than 30 days from issuing the notice may insert that time period in place of the number “30”. The proposed rule accordingly provides instructions explaining permissible variations to page three of the Neptune notice.

E. Additional Opt-Outs in the Model Form

The third column in the disclosure table in the proposed model form is intended to provide flexibility for financial institutions to include additional opt-out choices that are not required by Federal law. For example, a financial institution may give its customers the opportunity to limit sharing for joint marketing. In that case, the financial institution would answer the question “Can you limit this sharing?” in the far right column with “Yes (Check your choices, p. 3)” and would describe the additional opt-out choice on its opt-out form, for example by stating, “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution wanted to offer its customers the opportunity to opt out of its own marketing, it could provide for that option by answering “Yes” in the appropriate box of the disclosure table and by describing the opt-out choice on the opt-out form, for example by stating “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.” To obtain the safe harbor for use of the proposed model form, an institution that uses the disclosure table to show any additional opt-out choice must include the opt-out form on page three to provide consumers with a method for opting out. The Agencies specifically invite comment on other opt-outs that financial institutions may provide, and on whether the Agencies should provide model language based on the opt-out provisions provided in the proposed model form.

F. Appearance of the Model Form

In addition to the requirements that the proposed model form be comprehensible, clear and conspicuous, and allow for easy comparison of privacy practices among financial institutions, the law requires that the model form use an easily readable type font. The prototype notice developed in the Agencies’ phase one research and shown here as the proposed model form, reflects consideration of a number of typographical factors in the design.³⁵ Type size, type style, leading, x-height, serif versus sans serif,³⁶ upper and lower case type, along with the page layout — all play an important role in designing a ³⁵ The prototype notice developed in the consumer research is 10 on 12 BK Avenir Book. The “10 on 12” means that the font size is 10 points, and the leading (that is, the additional space between the lines of type) is 2 points of spacing.

³⁶ Serif typeface has small strokes at the ends of the lines that form each letter. Sans serif typeface does not have those small strokes.

typeface that is highly readable. Consumers who saw the prototype notice during the research process commented on how easy the type was to see and read.³⁷

All of these factors together affect the readability of a document. Therefore, in considering these various factors for the design of an easily readable type font, the Agencies are proposing 10-point font as the minimum type size and sufficient spacing between the lines of type (leading). The Agencies are further providing general guidance on type styles.

Type size: The readability of type size is highly dependent on the selection of the type style. Some styles in 10-point font are more readable than others in 12-point font and appear larger because of their design. Accordingly, the Agencies are proposing 10-point type size as the minimum size for use on the model form.

Leading: Leading is the spacing between lines of type, measured in points. If the line spacing is too narrow, the type is hard to read. In such a case, the ascenders (such as the upward line in the letter “h”) and descenders (such as the downward line in a “g”) may touch, blending the lines of type and making it much harder to distinguish the letters on the page. Research on the legibility of typography indicates that people read faster when text is set with 1 to 4 points of leading.³⁸ The Agencies are proposing a requirement that the leading used allow for sufficient spacing between the lines, but are not mandating a specific amount. Nevertheless, the Agencies are providing these general recommendations for use with the model form: 10- or 11- point type should have between 1 and 3 points of leading. Twelve-point type should have between 2 and 4 points of leading.³⁹

Type style and “x”-height: Experts differ on the question of the most desirable type style. The model form uses both sans serif and “monoweight” type, and upper and lower case lettering in the body of the form. While much of the printed material in the

United States and western Europe uses serif styles, Web designers are increasingly using sans serif type, as they have found that serif type is harder to read in this new medium. These changes in Web design are also beginning to affect font styles in printed materials. Accordingly, some typography designers are now using sans serif typefaces, as well as type with a uniform thickness throughout the letter (monoweight typeface), finding such typefaces easier to read than those with variable thickness. While a variety of type styles would be suitable for the model notice, the Agencies caution that institutions that use idiosyncratic fonts or highly stylized typefaces will not meet the model form safe harbor standard.

Larger x-height⁴⁰ makes a font appear larger and thus more readable, and fonts with larger x-heights are better for smaller text. Research shows that our eyes “scan the top of the letters’ x-heights during the normal reading process, so that is where the primary identification of each letter takes place.”⁴¹ Generally, a font with an x-height ratio of around .66 is easier to read.⁴²

The Agencies are not mandating a particular type style or x-height in order for a financial institution to obtain a safe harbor. Nevertheless, based on the research, the Agencies are providing these general guidelines for type style in the model form: For typefaces with a smaller x-height, 11- or 12-point font should be used; for typefaces with a larger x-height, a 10-point font would be sufficient.⁴³ Fonts that satisfy the type style and x-height guidelines for the proposed model form include sans serif fonts such as Tahoma, Century Gothic, Myriad, Avant Garde, Bk Avenir Book, ITS Franklin Gothic, Arial, and Gill Sans, and serif fonts such as the Chaparral Pro Family, Minion Pro, Garamond, Monotype Bodoni, and Monotype Century.⁴⁴

For ease of reference, the following table summarizes the recommendations discussed here for institutions that choose to use the model form and obtain the safe harbor.

⁴⁰ The “x-height” is the height of the lower-case “x” in relation to full height letters, such as a capital G. X-height is critical to type legibility.

⁴⁴ A number of these font styles, including Arial, Tahoma, Century Gothic, Garamond, and Bodoni, are preloaded on commonly used operating systems with most new personal computers. The other font styles are commercially available as well.

If	Then Use	And Use	And Use Font with
Font is 10-point	1–3 points leading	Monoweight typeface	Large x-height sans serif (around .66 ratio)
Font is 11-point	1–3 points leading	Monoweight typeface	Smaller x-height is acceptable; either serif or sans serif (less than .66 ratio is acceptable)
Font is 12-point	2–4 points leading	Monoweight or variable typeface	Smaller x-height is acceptable; either serif or sans serif (less than .66 ratio is acceptable)

G. Printing, Logos, and Color

The Agencies recognize that financial institutions have a strong interest in ensuring that documents they provide to the public have a distinctive look that may be readily recognized by consumers. Thus, a financial institution that uses the proposed model form may include its corporate logo on any of the pages, so long as the logo design does not interfere with the readability of the model form or space constraints of each page.

The model form used in the consumer testing was printed on 8.5 by 11 inch non-glossy paper, using varying shades of black ink to achieve the black and gray tones in the published prototype. The Agencies propose printing each page of the model form on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch piece of paper so that each page of the model form can be viewed simultaneously. The Agencies seek comment on other formats that may achieve the readability and ease of use preferred by consumers.

The Agencies propose that institutions using the model form use white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color is permitted to achieve visual interest to the model form, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the form's readability. The Agencies seek comment on whether, how, and to what extent institutions that elect to use the model form will use logos and/or color.

III. THE SAMPLE CLAUSES

The proposed model form is a standardized notice that would replace the Sample Clauses currently found in Appendix A of the privacy rule. It could be used by a financial institution at its option to comply with requirements for a clear and conspicuous privacy notice that meets the content requirements in sections __.6 and __.7 of the privacy rule.⁴⁵ Research to date indicates that the language in the Sample Clauses is confusing, and accordingly, the Agencies propose to eliminate the Sample Clauses from the privacy rule.

However, to ease the compliance burden for those institutions that currently have privacy notices based on the Sample Clauses, the Agencies are proposing a transition period of one year after which financial institutions would no longer obtain a safe harbor by using the sample clauses. Privacy notices using the Sample Clauses that are delivered to consumers (either in paper form or by electronic delivery such as email) or, alternatively, are posted electronically to meet the annual notice requirement of section __.9(c), would have a safe harbor for one year. Privacy notices using the Sample Clauses that are delivered or posted electronically after the one-year transition period would no longer obtain the safe harbor. Since institutions are required to send notices annually to their customers, annual notices that are delivered to consumers (either in paper form or by electronic delivery such as email) within the transition period would continue to get the safe harbor until the next annual privacy notice is due one year later.⁴⁶ The Sample Clauses would be rescinded one year after the transition period ends.

The Agencies note that the SEC's privacy rule does not provide a safe harbor for financial institutions that use the Sample Clauses. Rather, the Sample Clauses provide guidance concerning the SEC privacy rule's application in ordinary circumstances.⁴⁷ Consistent with this proposal, the SEC proposes that one year after the end of the transition period, the Sample Clauses would be rescinded and no longer provide guidance regarding the rule's application to financial institutions subject to the SEC's privacy rule.

IV. PROPOSED EFFECTIVE DATES

The provisions of the final rule will be effective [DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE], with the following exceptions:

⁴⁵ The Agencies are also proposing conforming amendments to sections __.2, __.6, and __.7 of the privacy rule and to the Appendix.

⁴⁶ For example, if an institution provides a notice using the Sample Clauses on day 361 after the effective date of the rule, it would continue to have the safe harbor for one year until its next annual notice is due. If an institution provides a notice using the Sample Clauses on day 369 after the effective date of the rule, it would not obtain the safe harbor. Privacy notices using the Sample Clauses posted on an institution's Web site to meet the annual notice requirements of section __.9(c) would no longer get the safe harbor beginning one year after the final rule becomes effective.

⁴⁷ See SEC privacy rule, section 248.2(a). The facts and circumstances of each individual situation determine whether use of the Sample Clauses constitutes compliance with the SEC's privacy rule.

Sec. __.6, paragraph (g) will be effective [DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE] until [DATE 2 YEARS AFTER PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE].

Newly redesignated Appendix B will be effective [DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE] until [DATE 2 YEARS AFTER PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE].

V. REQUEST FOR COMMENTS

The Agencies seek comment on all aspects of the proposed model form. The Agencies also invite commenters to submit any additional consumer research that may inform the statutory requirements. Commenters proposing alternative model notices or elements of a notice should submit any available supporting consumer research and documentation demonstrating that these alternatives meet the statutory requirements. The Agencies expect to do additional testing before finalizing a model form. We solicit comment on particular approaches to consumer testing for the Agencies to consider.

The Agencies particularly seek comment on the following issues:

A. Content of the Model Form

1. Whether a commenter believes particular aspects of the form are not clear and conspicuous or comprehensible; and, if so, identify those aspects and explain in detail the basis for that conclusion.
2. Whether financial institutions can accurately disclose their information sharing practices by using the standardized provisions and vocabulary in the proposed model form, including whether the proposed disclosure table provides a financial institution with sufficient flexibility to disclose its sharing practices, or any additional opt-outs it offers, including a detailed explanation of why or why not.
3. The extent to which modifications to the opt-out form are necessary for a financial institution to describe its information practices accurately, facilitate consumer use of the opt-out form, or offer additional opt-outs, including an explanation of the modifications that could be made to page one and/or page three in accordance with legal requirements and the intent to keep the table on the first page of the form.
4. The extent to which financial institutions intend to incorporate the FCRA section 624 disclosure and opt-out for affiliate marketing in the model form, with an explanation of why or why not, and the time period they may offer to consumers for the opt-out period.
5. Whether financial institutions should be required to alert consumers to changes in an institution's privacy practices as part of the model form.

B. Format of the Model Form

1. Whether each page of the proposed model form should be required to be on a separate piece of paper or whether another format could also allow consumers to readily see all the information in the model form at the same time.
2. Whether the guidance on easily readable type font in the instructions is helpful and/or sufficient for institutions that use the proposed model form.
3. What size paper would be appropriate for the model form while conforming to the guidance for easily readable type font and layout.
4. Whether financial institutions want to use color and/or logos on the proposed model form, and the manner and extent to which they would use them without conflicting with readability of the form and space requirements.

C. Additional Information

1. The extent to which financial institutions subject to the GLB Act are likely to use the proposed model form, including a detailed explanation of why the commenter does or does not expect financial institutions to use the form.
2. Particular approaches to additional consumer testing of the model form that the Agencies should consider.
3. The proposal to replace the Sample Clauses with the proposed model form, including – (1) the transition period after which use of these clauses no longer qualifies for a safe harbor, or, for institutions subject to the SEC’s privacy rule, guidance concerning the rule’s application and (2) whether the Agencies should retain Sample Clauses A-1, A-3, and A-7, or develop model clauses to replace those sample clauses, for use as a safe harbor only by those institutions that provide the simplified notice described in section __.6(c)(5) (NCUA 716.6(e)(5)) of the privacy rule.
4. Whether the Agencies should develop a Web-based design for those financial institutions that would like to use an electronic version of the proposed model form, and if so, whether institutions have suggestions for particular design and/or technical considerations.
5. Whether the Agencies should develop and make available on their Web sites a readily accessible and downloadable model form with “fillable” fields for institutions that wish to use the model form to create their own privacy notices; if so, whether institutions would use this downloadable model form; and whether it would be useful, particularly for smaller institutions that want to obtain the safe harbor.
6. Whether an SEC-regulated entity and an affiliated institution regulated by another Agency that intend to provide a joint privacy notice should be able to choose to rely on either the SEC model privacy form or the model privacy form proposed by the other Agency.⁴⁸

7. The Agencies are aware that many institutions, but not all, currently request the customer to provide his or her account number or Social Security number (or other personal information, separately or in conjunction with such information) in order to opt out, whether by toll-free telephone, by electronic means such as e-mail, or by regular mail. Do institutions need that information in order to process opt-out requests, or would the customer's name and address alone, or the customer's name, address, and a truncated account number for a single account, be sufficient to process opt-out requests, including for customers with multiple accounts at the same institution? Should the Agencies consider omitting a line for such information on the opt-out page for the model privacy form in order to better protect customers and make it easier to opt out? Alternatively, should the opt-out page on the model form contain a line for a truncated account number or other identifying information?

The SEC specifically requests the following additional comment from its regulated entities:

1. Whether the standardized provisions and vocabulary in the proposed model form for SEC-regulated financial institutions are sufficient to allow these financial institutions accurately to disclose their information sharing practices, and specifically on the terms used in: (a) the description of the types of personal information that may be collected (in the key frame on page one), and (b) the examples of sources of information collection (in the FAQ on sharing practices on page two). The SEC requests that commenters who believe the proposed terms are not sufficient suggest alternative or additional terms that would be more accurate and explain why those terms would more accurately reflect typical information collection and sharing practices for brokers, dealers, investment advisers registered with the SEC, and investment companies.
2. Whether institutions should be able to omit certain terms that may not apply to their information collection practices or their sources of information.

VI. REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT

The Regulatory Flexibility Act ("RFA"), 5 U.S.C. 601-612, requires an agency to provide an Initial Regulatory Flexibility Analysis ("IRFA") with a proposed rule and a Final Regulatory Flexibility Analysis ("FRFA") with the final rule, if any, unless the agency certifies that the rule would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. See 5 U.S.C. 603-605. Because the use of the model form issued in this proposal is optional, the Agencies do not expect that the rule will have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. However, because the statute creates a new safe harbor for institutions by replacing the Sample Clauses in the current rule, with a model form, we have determined that it is appropriate to publish the following IRFA in order to inquire into the impact of the proposed rule on small entities.

A. Reasons for the Proposed Action

The Agencies are issuing this proposed rule for comment because the Regulatory Relief Act specifically requires them, no later than April 11, 2007, to publish for comment a model form that financial institutions may use as a safe harbor to satisfy their notice requirements under the Agencies' existing privacy rule.

B. Objectives of, and Legal Basis for, the Proposed Action

The goal of the proposed amendments is to satisfy the requirements of section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act, which requires that the Agencies propose a model form that is comprehensible, clear and conspicuous, and succinct. The final model form that the Agencies adopt after reviewing comments would, if properly used, serve as a safe harbor for satisfying the privacy rule's requirements regarding content of privacy notices. The Act also requires that the proposed model form enable consumers easily to identify a financial institution's sharing practices and compare it with others.

As indicated in Section I of this release, the amendments to Appendix A of the Agencies' privacy rule are proposed pursuant to the authority set forth in § 503 (as amended by section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act) and § 504 of the GLB Act.⁴⁹

C. Small Entities Subject to the Proposed Rule Amendments

The proposed amendments to Appendix A and conforming amendments to sections __.2, __.6, and __.7 of the Agencies' privacy rules could potentially affect financial institutions, including financial institutions that are small businesses or small organizations, that choose to rely on the proposed model privacy form as a safe harbor.

1. OCC. The OCC estimates that 1,050 insured national banks, uninsured national banks and trust companies, and foreign branches and agencies are small entities for purpose of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

⁴⁹ The SEC also is proposing the amendments under section 504 of the GLB Act [15 U.S.C. 6804], section 23 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. 78w], section 38(a) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 [15 U.S.C. 80a-37(a)], and section 211 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 [15 U.S.C. 80b-11].

The CFTC also is proposing the amendments under Section 504 of the GLB Act [15 U.S.C. 6804], and Sections 5g and 8a(5) of the Commodity Exchange Act [7 U.S.C. 7b-2, 12a(5)].

2. Board. The Board estimates that 473 state member banks are small entities for purposes of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.
3. FDIC. The FDIC estimates that 3,302 state nonmember banks are small entities for purposes of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.
4. OTS. The OTS estimates that 429 small savings associations are small entities for purposes of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.
5. NCUA. The Regulatory Flexibility Act requires NCUA to prepare an analysis to describe any significant economic impact a regulation may have on a substantial number of small credit unions (primarily those under $10 million in assets). The NCUA estimates that 3,805 credit unions are small entities for purposes of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.
6. FTC. Determining a precise estimate of the number of small entities that are financial institutions within the meaning of the proposed rule is not readily feasible. The GLB Act does not identify for purposes of the Commission's jurisdiction any specific category of financial institution. In the absence of such information, there is no way to estimate precisely the number of affected entities that share nonpublic personal information with nonaffiliated third parties or that establish customer relationships with consumers and therefore assume greater disclosure obligations.
7. CFTC. The CFTC is unable to determine a precise estimate of its registrants that are small entities, or that would be using the model form.
8. SEC. The SEC estimates that 911 broker-dealers, 210 investment companies registered with the Commission, and 710 investment advisers registered with the Commission are small entities for purposes of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.⁵⁰

⁵⁰ For purposes of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 a small entity is a broker or dealer that (i) had total capital of less than $500,000 on the date in its prior fiscal year as of which its audited financial statements were prepared or, if not required to file audited financial statements, on the last business day of its prior fiscal year, and (ii) is not affiliated with any person that is not a small entity and is not affiliated with any person that is not a small entity. 17 CFR 240.0-1. Under the Investment Company Act of 1940, a "small entity" is an investment company that, together with other investment companies in the same group of related investment companies, has net assets of $50 million or less as of the end of its most recent fiscal year. 17 CFR 270.0-10. Under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, a small entity is an investment adviser that "(i) manages less than $25 million in assets, (ii) has total assets of less than $5 million on the last day of its most recent fiscal year, and (iii) does not control, is not controlled by, and is not under common control with another investment adviser

Because use of the model privacy form would be entirely voluntary, the Agencies have no way to estimate how many small financial institutions would use it.⁵¹ The Agencies expect, however, that small financial institutions, particularly those that do not have permanent staff available to address compliance matters associated with the privacy rule, would be relatively more likely to rely on the model privacy form than larger institutions. We believe that most financial institutions currently have legal counsel review their privacy notices for compliance with the GLB Act, the FCRA, and the privacy rule. We believe that a financial institution that uses the model form for its privacy notice would need little, if any, review by legal counsel because the proposed regulation does not permit institutions to vary the form to obtain the benefit of a safe harbor, except as necessary to identify their sharing and opt-out policies.

D. Reporting, Recordkeeping, and Other Compliance Requirements

The proposed rule does not itself impose any additional recordkeeping, reporting, disclosure, or compliance requirements. Financial institutions, including small entities, have been required to provide notice to consumers about the institution's privacy policies and practices since July 1, 2001 (or March 31, 2002 in the case of the CFTC). The proposed amendments would not affect these requirements and financial institutions would be under no obligation to modify their current privacy notices as a result of the proposed amendments. Instead, the amendments propose a specific model privacy form that a financial institution may use to comply with notice requirements under the GLB Act, the FCRA (as amended by the FACT Act), and the privacy rule. Nonetheless, if the proposed amendments are adopted, some of the financial institutions that rely on the Sample Clauses in the current privacy rules' appendixes may wish to transition to the proposed model form and may incur some small, incremental costs in making this transition.⁵² The Agencies expect, however, that the availability of a standardized model form would offset these costs because the form's standardized formatting and language would make it easier for institutions to prepare and revise their privacy policies.

E. Duplicative, Overlapping, or Conflicting Federal Rules

We believe there are no federal rules that duplicate, overlap, or conflict with the proposed amendments. In fact, the Agencies have designed the model form so that a financial institution may use it to satisfy disclosure requirements for both the GLB Act and the FCRA (as amended by the FACT Act).

that manages $25 million or more in assets, or any person that had total assets of $5 million or more on the last day of the most recent fiscal year.” 17 CFR 275.0-7.

⁵¹ The Agencies have requested comment on the likelihood that financial institutions would use the model privacy form. See supra section V.

⁵² We believe that institutions review their privacy policies annually, and the costs associated with this annual review, including professional costs, for compliance are likely to be the same as the costs to complete the proposed model form.

F. Significant Alternatives

The RFA directs the Agencies to consider significant alternatives that would accomplish the stated objectives, while minimizing any significant adverse impact on small entities. In connection with the proposed amendments, we considered the following alternatives:

1. Different reporting or compliance standards. As noted above, the Regulatory Relief Act requires the Agencies to publish “a” model form that, among other things, will facilitate comparison of the information sharing practices of different financial institutions. In light of these statutory requirements, the Agencies are proposing only one model form, which includes alternative language in some places that allows a financial institution to accurately describe its particular information sharing practices. The specific model form that the Agencies are proposing was developed as part of a careful and thorough consumer testing process designed to produce a clear, comprehensible, and comparable notice. The proposed model form emerged as the most effective of several notice formats considered as part of this testing. Although the Agencies know of no other model privacy notice that has been developed in this manner, we are specifically inviting comments about alternative model notices or elements of notices, along with supporting research and documentation. The Agencies will carefully consider any such submissions before adopting a final model form.

2. Clarification, consolidation, or simplification of reporting and compliance requirements. The Agencies believe that the proposed model form would simplify the reporting requirements for all entities, including small entities, that choose to use the model form. We anticipate that financial institutions that choose to use the proposed model form would spend less time preparing notices than if they had to draft one on their own. Because the model form was developed as part of a consumer testing process, it is difficult for the Agencies to further clarify, consolidate, or simplify the model notice without compromising the research findings.

3. Performance rather than design standards. Section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act specifically requires that the Agencies propose a model form. The model form is an alternative means of providing a privacy notice that institutions may choose to use. The privacy rule does not mandate the format of privacy notices; thus neither the rule nor the proposed amendment would impose a design standard.

4. Exempting small entities. We believe that an exemption for small entities would not be appropriate or desirable. The Agencies note that the model form is available for use at the discretion of all financial institutions, including small institutions. Moreover, two key objectives of the proposed model form are that (1) consumers can understand an institution’s information sharing practices and (2) they may more easily compare financial institutions’ sharing practices and policies across privacy notices. An exemption for small entities would directly conflict with both of these key objectives, particularly enabling comparison across notices.

G. Solicitation of Comments

We encourage the submission of comments with respect to any aspect of this IRFA. In particular, we request comments regarding: (i) the number of small entities that would be affected by the proposed amendments; (ii) the existence or nature of the potential impact of the proposed amendments on small entities discussed in the analysis; (iii) how to quantify the impact of the proposed amendments; and (iv) the consideration of alternatives. Commenters are asked to describe the nature of any impact and provide empirical data supporting the extent of the impact. As noted above in Section V, the Agencies specifically request comment on whether a downloadable version of the proposed model form would be useful for financial institutions, and particularly small entities that would like to take advantage of the safe harbor. All comments on this IRFA will be considered in the preparation of the Final Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, if the proposed amendments are adopted.

VII. PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT

The final rules governing the privacy of consumer financial information contain disclosures that are considered collections of information under the Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.). Before the Agencies issued their privacy rules, they obtained approval from OMB for the collections. OMB control numbers for the collections appear below. These proposed rules do not introduce any new collections of information into the Agencies' privacy rules, nor do they amend the rules in a way that substantively modifies the collections of information that OMB has approved. Therefore, no PRA submissions to OMB are required.

OCC: Control number 1557-0216.

Board: Control number 7100-0294.

FDIC: Control number 3064-0136.

OTS: Control number 1550-0103.

NCUA: Control number 3133-0163 (NCUA in separate submissions to OMB is currently in the process of requesting reinstatement, with revisions due to the decrease in the number of respondent credit unions, to this number.)

FTC: Control number 3084-0121.

SEC: Control number 3235-0537.

CFTC: Control number 3038-0055.

OCC AND OTS EXECUTIVE ORDER 12866 DETERMINATION

The OCC and OTS each has determined that its portion of the proposed rulemaking is not a significant regulatory action under Executive Order 12866.

OCC AND OTS EXECUTIVE ORDER 13132 DETERMINATION

The OCC and OTS each has determined that its portion of the proposed rulemaking does not have any federalism implications, as required by Executive Order 13132.

NCUA EXECUTIVE ORDER 13132 DETERMINATION

Executive Order 13132 encourages independent regulatory agencies to consider the impact of their actions on State and local interests. In adherence to fundamental federalism principles, the NCUA, an independent regulatory agency as defined in 44 U.S.C. 3502(5) voluntarily complies with the Executive Order. The proposed rule would not have substantial direct effects on the States, on the connection between the national government and the States, or on the distribution of power and responsibilities among the various levels of government. The NCUA has determined that this proposed rule does not constitute a policy that has federalism implications for purposes of the Executive Order.

OCC AND OTS UNFUNDED MANDATES REFORM ACT OF 1995 DETERMINATION

Section 202 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995, Public Law 104-4 (Unfunded Mandates Act) requires that an agency prepare a budgetary impact statement before promulgating a rule that includes a Federal mandate that may result in expenditure by State, local, and tribal governments, in the aggregate, or by the private sector, of $100 million or more in any one year. If a budgetary impact statement is required, section 205 of the Unfunded Mandates Act also requires an agency to identify and consider a reasonable number of regulatory alternatives before promulgating a rule. However, the Unfunded Mandates Act provisions do not apply to regulations that incorporate requirements specifically set forth in law. Because this notice of proposed rulemaking is issued pursuant to section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act, the OTS and OCC are not required to conduct an Unfunded Mandates Analysis for this rulemaking. Nevertheless, the OCC and OTS each has determined that this proposed rule will not result in expenditures by State, local, and tribal governments, or by the private sector, of $100 million or more. Accordingly, neither the OCC nor the OTS has prepared a budgetary impact statement or specifically addressed the regulatory alternatives considered.

SEC COST BENEFIT ANALYSIS

The SEC is sensitive to the costs and benefits imposed by its rules. As discussed above, the amendments the Agencies are proposing today would replace the sample clauses included in Regulation S-P's Appendix A (17 CFR 248, Appendix A) with a model privacy form that financial institutions could choose to provide to consumers. The proposed amendments are designed to implement section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act. This Act directs the Agencies to "jointly develop a model form which may be used, at the option of the financial institution, for the provision of disclosures under [section 503 of the GLB Act]." Use of the model form would be voluntary so a financial institution could itself determine the benefits and costs in deciding whether using the model form would be suitable for its business and customers. Moreover, a financial institution that elected to use the model privacy form would benefit from the safe harbor it provides for disclosures required under the GLB Act. There would be no incremental costs of the information requirements for the proposed model privacy form because the disclosures are already required under Regulation S-P. However, financial institutions could incur some personnel costs in implementing the proposed model form. We expect these would be minimal because the language and format in the form are standardized and particularly if the form could be downloaded from a Web site.⁵³ Financial institutions can only customize very limited sections of the model privacy form. Insofar as the Sample Clauses in current Regulation S-P may have some value to some financial institutions, their phase-out under the proposed amendments to the rule could create some costs to those institutions. If financial institutions, including SEC-regulated institutions, make widespread use of the model privacy form, we anticipate that consumers will benefit from notices that are more comprehensible and easier to compare and use.

A. Benefits

We anticipate that brokers, dealers, investment advisers registered with the SEC, and investment companies would benefit from the proposed model privacy form's standardized formatting and language. The notice requirements of Regulation S-P have been effective since July 1, 2001, and would not be altered by the proposed amendments, but new brokers, dealers, investment companies, and registered investment advisers would be able to use the model privacy form without investing the time and resources previously necessary to develop their own notices. We believe that institutions currently review their Regulation S-P privacy policies annually. To the extent that these institutions are required to change their policies to reflect changes in their privacy practices, they may find it easier to use the proposed model privacy form as a revised or annual privacy notice rather than to revise their existing notices. In addition, the SEC expects that revisions to an institution's privacy policies would be easier to record in the model form's standardized format. The SEC also anticipates that a financial institution that chooses to use the model notice would need little, if any, ongoing review by legal counsel because an institution cannot vary the form except as necessary to identify certain specific sharing and opt-out policies.

Appendix A of Regulation S-P currently contains sample clauses that the SEC has said provide guidance in ordinary circumstances. The SEC has said, however, that the “facts and circumstances of each individual situation” will determine whether “use of a sample clause” constitutes compliance.⁵⁴ In contrast, if the proposed amendments are adopted, SEC-regulated institutions would benefit from the certainty that proper use of the model notice entitles them to a safe harbor for disclosures required under the GLB Act and FCRA.

Finally, as discussed more fully in section I.B above, the proposed model form was developed in an extensive consumer research testing process that evaluated consumers’ ability to comprehend, use, and compare privacy notices. The SEC anticipates therefore that if financial institutions choose to use the proposed model form, consumers’ comprehension and their ability to use and compare privacy policies would be enhanced. Institutions also might benefit from consumers’ enhanced ability to understand and use the notices to the extent that consumers have more trust and confidence in an institution’s privacy policies because the consumers understand those policies.

B. Costs

While the proposed amendments would not affect Regulation S-P’s substantive requirements, and financial institutions would be under no obligation to modify their current privacy notices, we believe that financial institutions that elect to use the model privacy form could incur some small, incremental costs in making the transition from their current notices to the proposed model form. These costs could include staff time to review the model form and its instructions and complete the proposed form. As noted above, we anticipate there would be minimal computer costs associated with using the form, particularly if the form could be downloaded from a Web site. We also believe that a financial institution that would use the model privacy form would need little, if any, review by legal counsel because almost all the disclosures in the form are mandated. Institution-specific information consists of contact information, “yes” or “no” answers and brief descriptions, as necessary, of the types of entities with which they share information. Moreover, we believe that financial institutions currently review their privacy policies annually, and we anticipate that the costs associated with this annual review would likely be the same as the costs of completing the model form. Although there may be some costs to firms that currently rely on the sample clauses for guidance in preparing their privacy notices, we expect those costs to be minimal. As noted above, we believe that financial institutions take approximately the same time to prepare a notice using the proposed form as they currently take to review annual notices. Moreover, the Agencies are proposing to give financial institutions one year in which they can continue to rely on the Sample Clauses as guidance, which should allow time to minimize the costs of transition for institutions that would transition to the model privacy form. The SEC requests commenters to provide data on these and any other costs of transition or implementation, and to specify the type of financial institution (broker, dealer, investment adviser registered with the Commission, or investment company) that would incur the estimated costs.

As discussed above, we cannot estimate the number of institutions that would take advantage of the safe harbor. Accordingly, we cannot estimate the overall costs to broker-dealers, investment advisers registered with the Commission, and investment companies that may use the proposed model form.

C. Request for Comments

The SEC requests comment on the potential costs and benefits of the proposed amendments to Appendix A of Regulation S-P. The SEC specifically requests comment on the costs of each item discussed above that institutions could incur in using the model form and whether any of those costs would differ if the form were downloadable from a Web site. Commenters should specify the type of institution associated with estimates of cost and benefits. The SEC encourages commenters to identify, discuss, analyze, and supply relevant data regarding any additional costs and benefits. For purposes of the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996,⁵⁵ the SEC also requests information regarding the potential impact of the proposals on the U.S. economy on an annual basis.

SEC CONSIDERATION OF BURDEN ON COMPETITION

Securities Exchange Act Section 23(a)(2) requires the SEC, in adopting rules under that Act, to consider the impact that any such rule would have on competition.⁵⁶ Section 23(a)(2) also prohibits the SEC from adopting any rule that would impose a burden on competition not necessary or appropriate in furtherance of the purposes of the Securities Exchange Act.

As discussed above, the proposed amendments to Regulation S-P, including the proposed model form, are designed to comply with section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act, mandating that the Agencies propose a model form that is comprehensible, clear and conspicuous, and succinct. If adopted, SEC-regulated institutions would be able to use the model form in order to comply with the notice requirements under the GLB Act, the FCRA, and Regulation S-P.

The SEC does not expect the proposed amendments to have a significant impact on competition, and believes that any effect on competition would be favorable. Use of the proposed model form would be voluntary, permitting a financial institution to determine whether using the model form would enhance its competitive position. All brokers and dealers, investment companies, and registered investment advisers would be able to use the model form and take advantage of the safe harbor. Other financial institutions would be able to use the form and take advantage of the safe harbor under comparable rules proposed by the other Agencies. Under the Regulatory Relief Act, the Agencies have worked in consultation in order to ensure the consistency and comparability of the proposed amendments. Therefore, all financial institutions would have the same opportunity to use the model form and rely on the safe harbor.

⁵⁵ Pub. L. 104-121, Title II, 110 Stat. 857 (1996).

Further, if financial institutions choose to use the proposed model form, the proposed amendments could promote competition by enabling consumers more easily to understand and compare competing institutions' privacy policies. The SEC also anticipates that the proposed model form's standardized formatting would reduce the relative burden of compliance on smaller financial institutions, allowing them to compete more effectively with larger institutions that are more likely to have a dedicated compliance staff. As such, the SEC expects any small impact on competition caused by the proposed amendments would be beneficial. We request comment on whether the proposal, if adopted, would have an impact or burden on competition. Commenters are requested to provide empirical data and other factual support for their views if possible.

NCUA: THE TREASURY AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1999-ASSESSMENT OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS AND POLICIES ON FAMILIES

The NCUA has determined that this proposed rule would not affect family well-being within the meaning of section 654 of the Treasury and General Government Appropriations Act, 1999, Pub. L. 105-277, 112 Stat. 2681 (1998).

CFTC COST-BENEFIT ANALYSIS

Section 15 of the Commodity Exchange Act requires the CFTC to consider the costs and benefits of its action before issuing a new regulation under the Act. The CFTC understands that, by its terms, section 15 does not require the CFTC to quantify the costs and benefits of a new regulation or to determine whether the benefits of the proposed regulation outweigh its costs. Nor does it require that each proposed rule be analyzed piecemeal or in isolation when that rule is a component of a larger package of rules or rule revisions. Rather, section 15 simply requires the CFTC to "consider the costs and benefits" of its action.

Section 15 further specifies that costs and benefits shall be evaluated in light of five broad areas of market and public concern: Protection of market participants and the public; efficiency, competitiveness, and financial integrity of futures markets; price discovery; sound risk management practices; and other public interest considerations. Accordingly, the CFTC could in its discretion give greater weight to any one of the five enumerated areas of concern and could in its discretion determine that, notwithstanding its costs, a particular rule was necessary or appropriate to protect the public interest or to effectuate any of the provisions or to accomplish any of the purposes of the Act.

The CFTC has considered the costs and benefits of the proposed model form as a totality. The form provides a voluntary alternative means of complying with existing requirements of the privacy provisions of the GLB Act and section 5g of the CEA, and thus imposes no mandatory new costs. The CFTC solicits comment on the transitional costs that may be incurred by institutions electing to use the model form, including costs in addition to those already imposed. The CFTC believes that the model form should benefit futures industry consumer customers in better understanding a financial institution's privacy policies, and may facilitate customers in comparing the privacy policies of financial institutions. The Commission invites public comment on its application of the cost-benefit provision. Commenters also are invited to submit any data that they may have quantifying the costs and benefits of the proposed rules with their comment letters.

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth in the joint preamble, part 40 of chapter I of title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations is proposed to be revised as follows:

PART 40-PRIVACY OF CONSUMER FINANCIAL INFORMATION

1. The authority citation for part 40 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 12 U.S.C. 93a; 15 U.S.C. 6801 et seq.

2. Revise § 40.2 to read as follows:

§ 40.2 Model privacy form and examples.

(a) Model privacy form. Use of the model privacy form in Appendix A of this part, consistent with the instructions in Appendix A, constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 40.6 and 40.7 of this part, although use of the model privacy form is not required.

(b) Examples. The examples in this part are not exclusive. Compliance with an example, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

3. In § 40.6, revise paragraph (f) and add paragraph (g) to read as follows:

§ 40.6 Information to be included in privacy notices.

* * * * *

(f) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §40.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

(g) Sample clauses. Sample clauses illustrating some of the notice content required by this section are included in Appendix B of this part. Use of a sample clause in a privacy notice provided on or before [DATE ONE YEAR FOLLOWING THE DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE], to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

4. In § 40.7, add paragraph (i) to read as follows:

§ 40.7 Form of opt-out notice to consumers; opt-out methods.

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of financial holding company affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 40.6 and 40.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

(a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
- (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
- (4) Contact information.

(b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
- (3) The definitions.

(c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.

- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.
- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.

(b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 40.14 and 40.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 40.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 40.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the model form to satisfy their obligations under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form in order to obtain the benefit of the safe harbor. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 40.7 and 40.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

(a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing). This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

(b) Affiliates. As required by section 40.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”

(c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 40.14 and 40.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”

(d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 40.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.
- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

7. Amend newly redesignated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading:

APPENDIX B TO PART 40-SAMPLE CLAUSES

This Appendix only applies to privacy notices provided until the date that is on or before one year following the date of final publication of this rule. * * *

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of financial holding company affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 216.6 and 216.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

(a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
- (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
- (4) Contact information.

(b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
- (3) The definitions.

(c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.

- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.
- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.

(b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 216.14 and 216.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 216.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 216.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the model form to satisfy their obligations under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form in order to obtain the benefit of the safe harbor. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 216.7 and 216.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

(a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing). This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

(b) Affiliates. As required by section 216.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”

(c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 216.14 and 216.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”

(d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 216.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.
- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

7. Amend newly redesignated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading:

APPENDIX B TO PART 216-SAMPLE CLAUSES

This Appendix only applies to privacy notices provided until the date that is on or before one year following the date of final publication of this rule. * * *

12 CFR Chapter III

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth in the joint preamble, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation proposes to amend part 332 of chapter III of title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations as follows:

PART 332—PRIVACY OF CONSUMER FINANCIAL INFORMATION

1. The authority citation for part 332 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 12 U.S.C. 1819 (Seventh and Tenth); 15 U.S.C. 6801 et seq.

2. Revise § 332.2 to read as follows:

§ 332.2 Model privacy form and examples.

(a) Model privacy form. Use of the model privacy form in Appendix A of this part, consistent with the instructions in Appendix A, constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 332.6 and 332.7 of this part, although use of the model privacy form is not required.

(b) Examples. The examples in this part are not exclusive. Compliance with an example, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

3. In § 332.6, revise paragraph (f) and add paragraph (g) to read as follows:

§ 332.6 Information to be included in privacy notices.

* * * * *

(f) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §332.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

(g) Sample clauses. Sample clauses illustrating some of the notice content required by this section are included in Appendix B of this part. Use of a sample clause in a privacy notice provided on or before [DATE ONE YEAR FOLLOWING THE DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE], to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

4. In § 332.7 add paragraph (i) to read as follows:

§ 332.7 Form of opt-out notice to consumers; opt-out methods.

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of financial holding company affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 332.6 and 332.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

(a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
- (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
- (4) Contact information.

(b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
- (3) The definitions.

(c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.

- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.
- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.

(b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 332.14 and 332.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 332.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 332.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the model form to satisfy their obligations under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form in order to obtain the benefit of the safe harbor. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 332.7 and 332.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

(a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing). This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

(b) Affiliates. As required by section 332.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”

(c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 332.14 and 332.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”

(d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 332.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.
- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

7. Amend newly redesignated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading:

Office of Thrift Supervision

12 CFR Chapter V

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth in the joint preamble, the Office of Thrift Supervision proposes to amend part 573 of Chapter V of title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations as follows:

PART 573—PRIVACY OF CONSUMER FINANCIAL INFORMATION

1. The authority citation for part 573 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 12 U.S.C. 1462a; 1463, 1464, 1828; 15 U.S.C. 6801 et seq.

2. Revise § 573.2 to read as follows:

§ 573.2 Model privacy form and examples.

(a) Model privacy form. Use of the model privacy form in Appendix A of this part, consistent with the instructions in Appendix A, constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 573.6 and 573.7 of this part, although use of the model privacy form is not required.

(b) Examples. The examples in this part are not exclusive. Compliance with an example, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

3. In § 573.6, revise paragraph (f) and add paragraph (g) to read as follows:

§ 573.6 Information to be included in privacy notices.

* * * * *

(f) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §573.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

(g) Sample clauses. Sample clauses illustrating some of the notice content required by this section are included in Appendix B of this part. Use of a sample clause in a privacy notice provided on or before [DATE ONE YEAR FOLLOWING THE DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE], to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

4. In § 573.7, add paragraph (i) to read as follows:

§ 573.7 Form of opt-out notice to consumers; opt-out methods.

* * * * *

(i) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §573.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of financial holding company affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 573.6 and 573.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

(a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
- (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
- (4) Contact information.

(b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
- (3) The definitions.

(c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.

- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.
- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.

(b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 573.14 and 573.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 573.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 573.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the model form to satisfy their obligations under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form in order to obtain the benefit of the safe harbor. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 573.7 and 573.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

(a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing). This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

(b) Affiliates. As required by section 573.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”

(c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 573.14 and 573.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”

(d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 573.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.
- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

7. Amend newly redesignated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading:

APPENDIX B TO PART 573-SAMPLE CLAUSES

This Appendix only applies to privacy notices provided until the date that is on or before one year following the date of final publication of this rule. * * *

National Credit Union Administration

12 CFR Chapter V

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth in the joint preamble, the National Credit Union Administration proposes to amend part 716 of Chapter V of title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations as follows:

PART 716—PRIVACY OF CONSUMER FINANCIAL INFORMATION

1. The authority citation for part 716 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 12 U.S.C.1751 et seq.; 15 U.S.C. 6801 et seq.

2. Revise § 716.2 to read as follows:

§ 716.2 Model privacy form and examples.

(a) Model privacy form. Use of the model privacy form in Appendix A of this part, consistent with the instructions in Appendix A, constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 716.6 and 716.7 of this part, although use of the model privacy form is not required.

(b) Examples. The examples in this part are not exclusive. Compliance with an example, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

3. In § 716.6, add paragraphs (f) and (g) to read as follows:

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 716.6 and 716.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

(a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
- (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
- (4) Contact information.

(b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
- (3) The definitions.

(c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.

- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.
- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.

(b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 716.14 and 716.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 716.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 716.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the model form to satisfy their obligations under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form in order to obtain the benefit of the safe harbor. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 716.7 and 716.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

(a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing). This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

(b) Affiliates. As required by section 716.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”

(c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 716.14 and 716.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”

(d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 716.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.
- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

7. Amend newly redesignated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading:

Federal Trade Commission

16 CFR Chapter I

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth in the joint preamble, the Federal Trade Commission proposes to amend part 313 of chapter I of title 16 of the Code of Federal Regulations as follows:

PART 313—PRIVACY OF CONSUMER FINANCIAL INFORMATION

1. The authority citation for part 313 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 15 U.S.C. 6801 et seq.

2. Revise § 313.2 to read as follows:

§ 313.2 Model privacy form and rules of construction.

(a) Model privacy form. Use of the model privacy form in Appendix A of this part, consistent with the instructions in Appendix A, constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 313.6 and 313.7 of this part, although use of the model privacy form is not required.

(b) Examples. The examples in this part are not exclusive. Compliance with an example, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

(c) Compliance. For non-federally insured credit unions, compliance with an example contained in 12 CFR 716, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part. For intrastate securities broker-dealers and investment advisors not registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission, compliance with an example contained in 17 CFR part 248, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

3. In § 313.6, revise paragraph (f) and add paragraph (g) to read as follows:

§ 313.6 Information to be included in privacy notices.

* * * * *

(f) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §313.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

(g) Sample clauses. Sample clauses illustrating some of the notice content required by this section are included in Appendix B of this part. Use of a sample clause in a privacy notice provided on or before [DATE ONE YEAR FOLLOWING THE DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE], to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

4. In § 313.7 add paragraph (i) to read as follows:

§ 313.7 Form of opt-out notice to consumers; opt-out methods.

* * * * *

(i) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §313.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of financial holding company affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 313.6 and 313.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

(a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
- (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
- (4) Contact information.

(b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
- (3) The definitions.

(c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.

- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.
- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.

(b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 313.14 and 313.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 313.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 313.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the model form to satisfy their obligations under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form in order to obtain the benefit of the safe harbor. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 313.7 and 313.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

(a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing). This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

(b) Affiliates. As required by section 313.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”

(c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 313.14 and 313.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”

(d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 313.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.
- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

7. Amend newly redesignated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading:

Commodity Futures Trading Commission

17 CFR Chapter I

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth in the joint preamble, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission proposes to amend part 160 of chapter I of title 17 of the Code of Federal Regulations as follows:

PART 160—PRIVACY OF CONSUMER FINANCIAL INFORMATION

1. The authority citation for part 160 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 7 U.S.C. 7b-2 and 12a(5); 15 U.S.C. 6801 et seq.

2. Revise § 160.2 to read as follows:

§ 160.2 Model privacy form and rules of construction.

(a) Model privacy form. Use of the model privacy form in Appendix A of this part, consistent with the instructions in Appendix A, constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 160.6 and 160.7 of this part, although use of the model privacy form is not required.

(b) Examples. The examples in this part are not exclusive. Compliance with an example, to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

(c) Substituted compliance.

(1) Any person or entity otherwise subject to this part that is subject to and in compliance with the Securities and Exchange Commission Regulation S-P, 17 CFR part 248, will be deemed to be in compliance with this part.

(2) Any commodity trading advisor otherwise subject to this part that is registered or required to be registered as an investment adviser in the state in which it maintains its principal office and place of business as defined in §275.203A-3 of this title, and that is subject to and in compliance with 16 CFR part 313, will be deemed to be in compliance with this part.

3. In § 160.6, revise paragraph (f) and add paragraph (g) to read as follows:

§ 160.6 Information to be included in privacy notices.

* * * * *

(f) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §160.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

(g) Sample clauses. Sample clauses illustrating some of the notice content required by this section are included in Appendix B of this part. Use of a sample clause in a privacy notice provided on or before [DATE ONE YEAR FOLLOWING THE DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE], to the extent applicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

4. In § 160.7 add paragraph (i) to read as follows:

§ 160.7 Form of opt-out notice to consumers; opt-out methods.

* * * * *

(i) Model privacy form. Pursuant to §160.2(a) of this part, a model privacy form that meets the notice content requirements of this section is included in Appendix A of this part.

Appendix A [Redesignated as Appendix B]

5. Redesignate Appendix A as Appendix B.

6. Add new Appendix A to read as follows:

APPENDIX A TO PART 160-MODEL PRIVACY FORM

APPENDIX A. Model Privacy Form.

A. The model privacy form.

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of financial holding company affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 160.6 and 160.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

(a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
- (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
- (4) Contact information.

(b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:

- (1) The title.
- (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
- (3) The definitions.

(c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.

- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.
- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.

(b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 160.14 and 160.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 160.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 160.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the model form to satisfy their obligations under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form in order to obtain the benefit of the safe harbor. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 160.7 and 160.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

(a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing). This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

(b) Affiliates. As required by section 160.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”

(c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 160.14 and 160.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”

(d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 160.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.
- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

7. Amend newly redesignated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading:

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

Statutory Authority

The Commission is proposing to amend Regulation S-P pursuant to authority set forth in section 728 of the Regulatory Relief Act [Pub.L. 109-351], section 504 of the GLB Act [15 U.S.C. 6804], section 23 of the Securities Exchange Act [15 U.S.C. 78w], section 38(a) of the Investment Company Act [15 U.S.C. 80a-37(a)], and section 211 of the Investment Advisers Act [15 U.S.C. 80b-11].

Text of Proposed Amendments

For the reasons set forth in the preamble, the Commission proposes to amend Title 17, Chapter II of the Code of Federal Regulations as follows:

PART 248—REGULATION S-P: PRIVACY OF CONSUMER FINANCIAL INFORMATION

1. Revise the authority citation for part 248 to read as follows:

Authority: 15 U.S.C. 78q; 78w; 78mm; 80a-30(a); 80a-37; 80b-4; 80b-11; 1681w; and 6801-6809.

2. Revise § 248.2 to read as follows:

§ 248.2 Model privacy form; rule of construction.

(a) Model privacy form. Use of Form S-P (see Appendix A of this part), consistent with the instructions to the form, constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 248.6 and 248.7 of this part, although use of Form S-P is not required.

(b) Examples. The examples in this part provide guidance concerning the rule's application in ordinary circumstances. The facts and circumstances of each individual situation, however, will determine whether compliance with an example, to the extent practicable, constitutes compliance with this part.

(c) Substituted compliance with CFTC financial privacy rules by futures commission merchants and introducing brokers. Except with respect to § 248.30(b), any futures commission merchant or introducing broker (as those terms are defined in the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1, et seq.)) registered by notice with the Commission for the purpose of conducting business in security futures products pursuant to section 15(b)(11)(A) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78o(b)(11)(A)) that is subject to and in compliance with the financial privacy rules of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (17 CFR part 160) will be deemed to be in compliance with this part.

* * * * *

3. Amend § 248.6 by revising paragraph (f) and adding paragraph (g) to read as follows:

§ 248.6 Information to be included in privacy notices.

* * * * *

(f) Model Form S-P. Pursuant to § 248.2(a) and Appendix A of this part, Form S-P meets the notice content requirements of this section.

(g) Sample clauses. Sample clauses illustrating some of the notice content required by this section are included in Appendix B of this part. The sample clauses in Appendix B of this part provide guidance concerning the rule's application in ordinary circumstances in a privacy notice provided on or before [ONE YEAR FOLLOWING THE DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THE FINAL RULE]. The facts and circumstances of each individual situation, however, will determine whether compliance with a sample clause constitutes compliance with this part.

4. Amend § 248.7 by adding paragraph (i) to read as follows:

§ 248.7 Form of opt-out notice to consumers; opt-out methods.

* * * * *

(i) Model Form S-P. Pursuant to § 248.2(a) and Appendix A of this part, Form S-P meets the notice content requirements of this section.

Appendix A [Redesignated as Appendix B]

5. Redesignate Appendix A to Part 248 as Appendix B.

6. Add new Appendix A to read as follows:

APPENDIX A TO PART 248 – FORM S-P

(1) Any person may obtain a copy of Form S-P prescribed for use in this part by written request to the Securities and Exchange Commission, 100 F Street, NE, Washington, DC 20549. Any person also may view this form at: [Web site URL].

(2) Use of Form S-P by brokers, dealers, and investment companies, and investment advisers registered with the Commission constitutes compliance with the notice content requirements of §§ 248.6 and 248.7 of this part.

7. Form S-P (referenced in Appendix A of this part) is added to read as follows:

Note: The text of Form S-P does not, and this amendment will not, appear in the Code of Federal Regulations.

B. General Instructions

1. How the model privacy form is used.

The model form may be used, at the option of a financial institution, including a group of financial holding company affiliates that use a common privacy notice, to meet the content requirements of the privacy notice and opt-out notice set forth in sections 248.6 and 248.7 of this part.

(Note that disclosure of certain information, such as assets, income, and information from a consumer reporting agency, may give rise to obligations under the Fair Credit Reporting Act [15 U.S.C. 1681 – 1681x] (FCRA), such as a requirement to permit a consumer to opt out of disclosures to affiliates or designation as a consumer reporting agency if disclosures are made to nonaffiliated third parties.)

2. The contents of the model privacy form.

The model form consists of two or three pages, depending on whether a financial institution shares in a manner that requires it to provide a third page with opt-out information.

- (a) Page One. The first page consists of the following components:
 - (1) The title.
 - (2) The key frame (Why?, What?, How?).
 - (3) The disclosure table (“Reasons we can share your personal information”).
 - (4) Contact information.
- (b) Page Two. The second page consists of the following components:
 - (1) The title.
 - (2) The Frequently Asked Questions on sharing practices.
 - (3) The definitions.
- (c) Page Three. The third page consists of a financial institution’s opt-out form.

3. The format of the model privacy form.

The model form is a standardized form, including page layout, page content, format, style, pagination, and shading. No other information may be included in the model form, and the model form may be modified only as described below.

- (a) Easily readable type font. Financial institutions that use the model form must use an easily readable type font. Easily readable type font includes a minimum of 10-point font and sufficient spacing between the lines of type.
- (b) Logo. A financial institution may include a corporate logo on any page of the notice, so long as it does not interfere with the readability of the model form or the space constraints of each page.

- (c) Page size and orientation. Each page of the model form must be printed on one side of an 8.5 by 11 inch paper in portrait orientation.
- (d) Color. The model form may be printed on white or light color paper (such as cream) with black or suitable contrasting color ink. Spot color may be used to achieve visual interest, so long as the color contrast is distinctive and the color does not detract from the readability of the model form.

C. Information Required in the Model Privacy Form

The model form is a standardized form, and institutions seeking to obtain the safe harbor through use of the model form may modify the form only as described below:

1. Name of the institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice.

Include the name of the financial institution or group of affiliated institutions providing the notice on the form wherever [name of financial institution] appears. Contact information, such as the institution's toll-free telephone number, Web address, or mailing address, or other contact information, should be inserted as appropriate, wherever [toll-free telephone] or [web address] or [mailing address] appear.

2. Page one.

- (a) General instructions for the disclosure table. There are reasons for sharing or using personal information listed in the left column of the disclosure table. Each of these reasons correlates to certain legal provisions described below. In the middle column, each institution must provide a "Yes" or "No" response in each box that accurately reflects its information sharing policies and practices with respect to the reason listed on the left. Each institution also must complete each box in the right column as to whether a consumer can limit such sharing. If an institution answers "No" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must answer "We don't share" in the corresponding right column. If an institution answers "Yes" to sharing for a particular reason in the middle column, it must, in the right column, answer either "No" if it does not offer an opt-out or "Yes (Check your choices, p.3)" if it does offer an opt-out. Except for the sixth row ("For our affiliates to market to you"), an institution must list all reasons for sharing, and complete the middle and right columns of the disclosure table.
- (b) Specific disclosures and corresponding legal provisions.

- (1) For our everyday business purposes. Because all financial institutions share information for everyday business purposes, as contemplated by sections 248.14 and 248.15 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” to the sharing of such information and “No” to the availability of an opt-out.
- (2) For our marketing purposes. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction. This provision includes service providers contemplated by section 248.13 of this part.
- (3) For joint marketing with other financial companies. As contemplated by section 248.13 of this part, the financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that shares for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (4) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about transactions and experiences. This provision applies to sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by sections 603(d)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason may or may not elect to provide an opt-out and must provide the corresponding answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.
- (5) For our affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about creditworthiness. This provision applies to the sharing of certain information with an institution’s affiliates, as contemplated by section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA. The financial institution must answer “Yes” or “No” in the middle column. An institution that does not share for this reason must answer “We don’t share” in the right column. An institution that does not have any affiliates will also use this answer. Institutions that share for this reason must provide an opt-out and must provide the appropriate answer in the right column as described in paragraph C.2.(a) of this Instruction.

- (6) For our affiliates to market to you. This provision applies to information shared among affiliates that is used by those affiliates for marketing, as contemplated by section 624 of the FCRA. Following the effective date of the rules implementing section 624, institutions that elect to incorporate this provision into the notice required under this part must include this reason for sharing as set forth in the model form. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and use it for marketing must answer “Yes” in the middle column, and “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” in the right column corresponding to the availability of an opt-out. Institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing may elect to include this provision in the model form and answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column; however, institutions whose affiliates receive such information and do not use it for marketing are not required to use this provision. Institutions that do not have affiliates and elect to include this provision in their notice will answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column.
- (7) For nonaffiliates to market to you. This provision applies to sharing under sections 248.7 and 248.10(a) of this part. Financial institutions that do not share for this reason must answer “No” in the middle column and “We don’t share” in the right column. Financial institutions that do share for this reason must answer “Yes” in the middle column and “Yes (check your choices, p. 3)” corresponding to the availability of an opt-out.
- (8) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution may customize the model form to offer opt-outs beyond those required under Federal law, so long as the additional information falls within the space constraints of the model form. If the institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its own marketing or for joint marketing, for example, it can provide for that option by stating: “Yes (Check your choices, p.3)” as to the availability of the opt-out.

3. Page two.

- (a) General instructions for the Definitions.

The financial institution must customize the space below the last three definitions in this section (affiliates, nonaffiliates, and joint marketing).

This specific information must be in italicized lettering to set off the information from the standardized definitions.

- (b) Affiliates. As required by section 248.6(a)(3) of this part, the financial institution must identify the categories of its affiliates or state “[name of financial institution] has no affiliates” in italicized lettering where [affiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with affiliates must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our affiliates include companies with a [name of financial institution] name; financial companies such as [list companies]; and nonfinancial companies, such as [list companies].”
- (c) Nonaffiliates. If the financial institution shares with nonaffiliated third parties outside the exceptions in sections 248.14 and 248.15 of this part, the institution must identify the types of nonaffiliated third parties with which it shares or state “[name of financial institution] does not share with nonaffiliates so they can market to you.” in italicized lettering where [nonaffiliate information] appears. A financial institution that shares with nonaffiliated third parties as described here must use, as applicable, the following format: “Nonaffiliates we share with can include [list categories of companies such as mortgage companies, insurance companies, direct marketing companies, and nonprofit organizations].”
- (d) Joint Marketing. As required by section 248.13 of this part, the financial institution must identify the types of financial institutions with which it engages in joint marketing or state “[name of financial institution] doesn’t jointly market.” in italicized lettering where [joint marketing] appears. A financial institution that shares with joint marketing partners must use, as applicable, the following format: “Our joint marketing partners include [list categories of companies such as credit card companies].”

4. Page three.

Opt-out form. Financial institutions must use page three only if they: (1) share or use information in a manner that triggers an opt-out; or (2) choose to provide an opt-out (as disclosed in the table on page 1) in addition to what is required by law. The model opt-out form must be provided on a separate page of the model form.

- (a) Contact us. The section describes three common methods by which a consumer exercises an opt-out – by telephone, on the Web, and by mail. Financial institutions may customize this section to provide for the particular opt-out methods and options the institution provides. For example, if an institution offers opting out by telephone and the Web but not by mail, it would provide only telephone and Web information as shown in the model form in the “Contact Us” box. Only institutions that allow more than 30 days after providing the notice before sharing information may change the number of days in the lower right hand section of the box.

- (b) Check your choices. Institutions must display the applicable opt-out options in the “Check your choices” box shown on this page. If an institution chooses not to offer an opt-out by mail, it must delete the boxes for name, address, account number, and mailing directions in the lower right-hand corner of the model form. Financial institutions that only offer one or two of the opt-out options listed on the model form must list only those options from the model form that apply to their practices and correspond accurately to the disclosures on page one. Thus, if an institution does not share in a manner that requires an opt-out for sharing with nonaffiliates, it must not include that opt-out option on page three of the model form. Institutions requiring information from consumers on the opt-out form other than an account number should modify that designation in the “Check your choices” box. Institutions that require customers with multiple accounts to identify each account to which the opt-out should apply should modify that portion of the model form.
- (c) Section 624 opt-out. If the financial institution’s affiliates use information for marketing pursuant to section 624 of the FCRA, and the institution elects to consolidate that opt-out notice in the model form, it must include that disclosure and opt-out election as shown in the model form. Institutions that elect to limit the time for the affiliate marketing opt-out, consistent with the requirements of section 624, must adhere to the requirements of that section and the Agencies’ implementing rule with respect to any subsequent notice and opt-out. Institutions that elect to limit the opt-out period must include a statement in italics, as shown on the model form, that states the period of time for which the opt-out applies.
- (d) Additional opt-outs. A financial institution that uses the disclosure table to indicate any opt-out choices available to consumers beyond those required by Federal law must include those opt-outs on page three of the model form. For example, if the financial institution discloses in the table that it offers an opt-out for joint marketing, the institution must revise the opt-out form on page three to reflect the availability of an opt-out, such as by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share my personal information with other financial institutions to jointly market to me.” Likewise, if a financial institution chooses to offer its customers an opt-out for its marketing, it can provide for that option in the disclosure table and on the opt-out form by adding a check-off box with the words “Do not share [or use] my personal information to market to me.”

8. Amend newly designated Appendix B by adding a new sentence immediately after the heading to read as follows:
